COMMONS ACT 2006 — SECTION 15

Guidance Notes for the completion of an Application for the Registration of land as a Town or Village Green outside the pilot implementation areas

Introduction

These guidance notes are designed to help you the applicant to complete a form to register land as a town or village green under section 15(1) or 15(8) of the Commons Act 2006 (“the Act”) outside the pilot areas for implementation of Part 1 of the Commons Act 2006 (see Coverage of England, on page 2 below).

Your application must be made using form 44 under the rules contained in the Commons (Registration of Town or Village Greens) (Interim Arrangements) (England) Regulations 2007¹. The regulations set out the information required in your application. Your application must be submitted to the commons registration authority (“the registration authority”) for your area. The registration authority will be able to advise you on completing the application form and the procedures involved.

You can see a copy of section 15 of the Act and the associated explanatory notes in Annex A below: the explanatory notes will help you understand in what circumstances you may be able to successfully apply to register a new green. Section 15 replaces and updates older legislation. The new legislation makes the following changes:

- it provides a period of grace after use ‘as of right’² has been ended by the landowner, during which you can still make an application to register the land as a green (under the old legislation, an application had to be made immediately after use ‘as of right’ had been ended);
- it ensures that, where a landowner grants permission for use of his land when there has already been 20 years’ use of the land ‘as of right’, then use continues to be regarded ‘as of right’ (so there is no time limit by which you must make an application for registration, unless the landowner takes other steps to challenge use);
- it requires any period of statutory closure (e.g. during a foot-and-mouth disease outbreak) to be disregarded when deciding whether there has been 20 years’ use ‘as of right’; and
- it allows for the first time the owner of land to register it voluntarily as a green.

² See note 4 as to the meaning of ‘as of right’.

In this guidance, we refer to different provisions contained in section 15. For example, section 15(1) means subsection (1) of section 15 (that is, the first part of section 15 marked with a (1)). You can look up these provisions in annex A.

Coverage of England

These guidance notes apply only to England outside the pilot implementation areas for Part 1 of the Commons Act 2006. Different rules apply in relation to the registration of town or village greens in the pilot implementation areas, and in Wales.

The pilot implementation areas in England are: Devon, Kent (but not including unitary authorities in these first two counties), Cornwall, Hertfordshire, Herefordshire, Lancashire (but not Blackpool), and Blackburn with Darwen. If you want to apply to register a green in any of these areas on or after 1 October 2008, you should refer to the separate guidance to applicants in the pilot implementation areas available from the Defra website, at: www.defra.gov.uk/wildlife-countryside/issues/common/registration/index.htm. In these areas, you should not apply using form 44, but you should ask your registration authority to supply you with a form for the purposes of applying to register a town or village green under section 15. The arrangements for applying in the pilot implementation areas differ from those in the rest of England, and your application will be delayed or refused if your application is made in accordance with this guidance.

If you want to register a green in Wales, you should seek advice from the registration authority.

Disclaimer

These guidance notes are non-statutory. They do not form part of the regulations and have no legal effect. They provide guidance on the main features of the application process and do not attempt to provide a comprehensive explanation of every issue.

The registration of town or village greens is a complex area of law. The courts have been asked to rule on the law on a number of occasions and we expect they will continue to do so. This guidance should therefore not be regarded as definitive. Defra cannot interpret the legislation and it is for commons registration authorities to consider how best to do so in determining applications for the registration of new greens. You may wish to seek your own independent legal advice before proceeding with an application.

Guidance

1. Registration authorities

You must apply to the registration authority for the area of land which you want to register as a town or village green. This is normally the county council, unitary authority, metropolitan district council or London Borough council. If the land comes under the jurisdiction of more than one registration authority we suggest that you apply to the registration authority within whose area the majority of the land lies. If that is incorrect the registration authority will advise you.

Sometimes, one registration authority may arrange that another neighbouring registration authority should deal with applications for registration of greens in its own area. If this happens, your registration authority will pass on your application to the other authority.

2. Areas exempt from registration

The New Forest, the Forest of Dean, and Epping Forest all have special status and you cannot register land as a town or village green in these areas. The registration authority for the relevant area will be able to advise you on the boundaries of the forests in case of any doubt.

3. Who may apply for registration

Anyone may apply to register land as a green under the criteria in section 15(1) of the Act. If you are a landowner you may register your land voluntarily as a green under section 15(8) (see note 8 below).

In both cases you must apply using form 44. This is available from the registration authority or can be printed from the Defra website at: <http://www.defra.gov.uk/wildlife-countryside/protected-areas/common-land/tvg.htm>. The procedure for registration will be simpler if you are applying voluntarily as a landowner to register land as green, because the registration authority will not require evidence of the use of the land.

4. Qualifying criteria for registration where the application is under section 15(1)

In preparation for your application you will need to assess whether the recreational use of the land by local people meets the strict test for registration. Your application must show that use of the land meets one of the criteria set out in section 15(2), section 15(3) or section 15(4). These criteria are alternatives, so you will need to see which one of them (if any) applies to your particular circumstances.

Whether you apply under section 15(2), 15(3) or 15(4), your application must show that a significant number of local people have indulged in lawful sports or pastimes 'as of right' (i.e. without permission, force or secrecy) on the land for at least 20 years. These requirements reflect the ancient law of custom, where such a pattern of use created a presumption that the local inhabitants had established recreational rights over the land. You should look very carefully at the criteria for registration in Annex A to this guidance. It will help your case if you are able to find a range of witnesses who can provide detailed statements about the qualifying use of the land.

Significant number of the inhabitants

The criteria require that a 'significant number of the inhabitants' have indulged in lawful sports and pastimes on the land. In the *McAlpine Homes*³ case the High Court provided some useful guidance about what 'a significant number' might mean. The court did not accept that 'significant' in this context would mean a considerable or substantial number but that the number of people using the land had to be sufficient to signify that the land was in general use by the local community.

Period of use 'as of right'

Your application will be examined by the registration authority against the criteria in section 15(2), 15(3) or 15(4) as you have indicated on the form. It must meet one of these tests to be properly considered:

- Use continuing — section 15(2) applies where the land has been used 'as of right' for lawful sports and pastimes for 20 years or more before the application is made, and this use continues⁴ at the date you apply.
- Use ended no more than two years ago — section 15(3) applies where recreational use 'as of right' for 20 years or more ended no more than two years before the date you apply.
- Use ended before 6 April 2007 — section 15(4) makes a special transitional provision where recreational use 'as of right' for 20 years or more ended before 6 April 2007. In such a case, you must apply within five years of the date the use 'as of right' ended. Other special arrangements apply, in this situation only, where construction works under a planning permission affecting the land began before 23 June 2006 (see "Planning permission" below).

The deadlines for making an application are not flexible so if you do intend to apply for registration, you must keep to them.

Statutory closures

When you are preparing your evidence and deciding whether there has been 20 years' use 'as of right' of the land, you should not take any account of any period of statutory closure of the land. That is where access to the land was forbidden because of temporary special restrictions imposed by a local authority or the Government. An example of this might be where the area of land was closed by order during an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease. If there was such a closure during the period specified in your application, you should make this clear, and it must not be counted towards the period of at least 20 years that you rely on in seeking registration.

For example, an application claims that Perks Field was used 'as of right' for lawful sports and pastimes between May 1983 and May 2004. But Perks Field was closed by order for six months in 2001 because of foot-and-mouth disease. The application therefore refers to the closure of Perks Field in 2001, but is still able to show that there was 20½ years' use 'as of right' (21 years between 1983 and 2004, less half a year during 2001). The closure in 2001 is disregarded in counting the period of use 'as of right'.

⁴ For this purpose, recreational use 'as of right' is deemed to continue if, after 20 years or more of such use, permission is given for local people to use the land. This is explained in more detail in the section on 'Permission to use the land' below.

Permission to use the land

In some cases, a landowner may grant people permission to use his land after there has already been 20 years' use of the land 'as of right'. If that happens, then section 15(7) says that the grant of permission does not stop continuing use of the land being regarded 'as of right' for the purposes of an application under section 15. There is then no time limit by which you must make an application for registration, unless the landowner takes other steps to challenge use (such as by fencing off the land to prevent access). If you do decide to apply it will be under the criteria in section 15(2).

For example, Morris Meadow was used 'as of right' for lawful sports and pastimes between May 1980 and May 2001. But in May 2001, the landowner put up signs saying: "You are welcome to use this land for recreation, but this permission may be terminated at any time". Section 15(7) means that use after May 2001 continued to be regarded 'as of right'. In May 2006, the landowner fenced off the site. So use was no longer 'as of right' after May 2006.

In other cases where use of the land 'as of right' has ended (such as where the land is fenced off, or an injunction is obtained against trespassers), you must seek registration within the time limits in section 15(3) or 15(4), otherwise the land will no longer be eligible for registration.

We recommend that you apply to register land as a green as soon as reasonably practicable in all cases. If it becomes clear during the course of the registration authority's investigation of the application that it is necessary for you to rely on different qualifying criteria, then it is Defra's view that the application may be amended to reflect the alternative criteria.

Planning permission

Your application for registration may relate to land over which planning permission exists for development. In a case where all the rigorous registration tests are met any development proposal and subsequent planning permission are not normally relevant to the registration authority's decision on your application.

However, the Act recognises that it would be unacceptable for land to be registered as a green if development had been completed or was already underway before the new criteria for registration had been published by Parliament. So, if an application under section 15(4) relates to land in respect of which, before 23 June 2006, planning permission had been granted, and construction works under that permission have begun on the land, or on any other land covered by the permission, registration of the land may not be possible. In such cases your application will be rejected where the land has, or will, become permanently unusable for public recreation because of these works. However, it may still be possible for you to register any part of the land which is not made permanently unusable in this way.

This exemption from registration of land under development does not apply to applications under section 15(3), and has no relevance to applications under section 15(2).

Defra's view is that outline planning permission merely establishes the principle that development is acceptable but actual construction works are not permitted on site until full or detailed planning permission is obtained. If works are undertaken in advance of full consent being granted, the registration authority will need to decide whether they are recognised construction works within the terms of section 15(5).

For example, Badger's Mead was used 'as of right' for lawful sports and pastimes between April 1980 and July 2004. In December 2004, Brock District Council granted full planning permission for a housing estate on land including part of Badger's Mead. An application for registration of the green is made to Brockshire County Council in July 2007, under the 'five year rule' in section 15(4). The application is accepted, but only in relation to part of Badger's Mead. The remaining part of Badger's Mead, because it is in the course of being developed for housing under the planning permission, is excluded from the land registered as a green by Brockshire County Council.

5. Land descriptions and maps

You must include with your application a map and description of the land claimed for registration as a town or village green. (If your application relates to the whole of an area of land already registered as common land, your application need not include a map of the land, but you must include the register unit number.) You must use an Ordnance Survey map, on a scale of not less than 1:2,500. You must show the land which you want to register by means of distinctive colouring sufficiently to enable it to be accurately identified by the registration authority (a coloured edging inside the boundary of the land may be the best method). The map must also be marked as an exhibit to the statutory declaration which accompanies the application (see note 10 below). Further information about how to obtain Ordnance Survey large scale maps can be found on the internet at www.ordnancesurvey.co.uk or by calling 08456 050505.

6. Locality or neighbourhood within a locality

This is the area lived in by the local people whose evidence about recreational use you rely on in your application to register land as a green. You will need to provide a statement or map to identify this locality or neighbourhood within a locality. In the Trap Grounds case⁵, Lord Hoffman expressed the view that any 'locality or neighbourhood within a locality' need not be wholly within a single locality and concluded that it means 'within a locality or localities'.

You may find it difficult to precisely define the locality or neighbourhood and you will need to consider all of the evidence you have to support your case very carefully. You should try to specify the locality or neighbourhood by reference to a recognised administrative area, such as a civil parish or electoral ward, or an obvious geographical characteristic such as a village or housing estate. If that is not possible, then you should instead include a map showing what you believe to be the locality or neighbourhood, for example by drawing a line around it.

If you are applying to register your land voluntarily as a green, it is up to you to decide what locality or neighbourhood should have recreational rights over the land.

In either case, Defra's view is that, in relation to any land registered as a green, only the inhabitants of the defined locality or neighbourhood will have the legal right to indulge in sports and pastimes over the green.

7. Grounds of application and evidence

If your application is made under section 15(1) of the Act, you will need to ensure that all of the evidence you have to support the nature and extent of use of the land 'as of right' is provided to the registration authority so that it can consider that evidence to see whether the land qualifies for registration. Witness statements, witness forms of evidence and photographs are likely to be helpful to your case. A sample of an evidence questionnaire to use in support of your claim can be obtained from the Open Spaces Society (see note 14 below).

You should set out in your application, as briefly as possible, a summary of the case for registration and provide, on separate paper, a fuller statement of the facts supporting the claim. You should include information on the nature of the recreational activities that have taken place on the land, an estimate of the number of people undertaking these activities and of their frequency, and explain how this use has been 'as of right'. The registration authority can ask you to provide further evidence in support of the application.

The registration authority may decide to hold a hearing or inquiry into your application. The purpose of the inquiry will be to establish and test the evidence for and against registration of the land. It may be helpful to your case if witnesses are able to attend the hearing or inquiry to give evidence in person (even if similar evidence has been given in writing). Anybody attending the hearing or inquiry may be questioned about their evidence by the person in charge, or by objectors to the application (this is known as cross-examination).

8. Voluntary registration where the application is under section 15(8)

If you are the owner of land, you may apply under section 15(8) to register it voluntarily as a green. You cannot do this unless you have first obtained the consent of any lease or charge holder of the land, such as a tenant, or a mortgagee. You must provide evidence that any 'relevant leaseholder', and the proprietor of any 'relevant charge' over the land, consent to the application. These terms are defined in section 15(9) and 15(10) of the Act (see Annex A). In such cases you will need to consult these people in advance of the application to inform them of your intention to seek voluntary registration. They will need to provide you with a signed document which includes their name and address, a statement of the nature of their relevant interest in the land, and their formal consent to the application.

You will need to confirm in the statutory declaration that:

- you the applicant are the owner of the land and are applying to register the land as green; and either

- that you have obtained and included with the declaration all necessary consents from the relevant leaseholder or proprietor of any relevant charge over the land;

or

- that no such consents are required.

In some cases the registration authority may decide to ask you for further evidence of your ownership before it accepts your application.

9. Supporting documents

You must include with your application a copy of every document which might be relevant to the application which is in your possession or control (even if it would not be helpful to your application), You are recommended not to forward the original of any deed or other private document. Instead, you should enclose a copy, preferably indorsed with a certificate signed by a solicitor that it has been examined against the original: in such a case, you should indicate, either on the copy itself or on the application form, who has the original and where it may be inspected. If any related document is believed to exist, but neither the original nor a copy can be produced, this should be mentioned in question 11 of the application, where you should describe the missing document and explain why it cannot be produced. Any inquiry or hearing into the application may ask that the original document be produced.

10. Statutory Declaration

You must make a statutory declaration, confirming the truth of the evidence given in your application, before a justice of the peace, practising solicitor, commissioner for oaths or notary public. (You may be asked to pay a fee for this service.) Each map accompanying the application and referred to in the statutory declaration must be marked as an exhibit and signed by the officer taking the declaration (initialling is insufficient). A map is marked by writing on the face in ink an identifying symbol such as the letter 'A'. If there is more than one map a different identifying symbol must be used for each. On the back of the map it must state: this is the exhibit marked 'A' referred to in the statutory declaration of (name of declarant) made this (date) before me (signature and qualification).

You are responsible for telling the truth in presenting the application and accompanying evidence and should be aware that your statutory declaration is a sworn or affirmed statement of truth to that effect. It is a criminal offence to deliberately provide misleading or untrue evidence and if you do so you may be prosecuted.

11. Action by the registration authority in deciding an application

The notes in this section provide some guidance on what will happen to your application after you have sent it to the registration authority.

(a) If you are applying under section 15(1):

The registration authority will stamp a date of receipt to your application when you send it to the registration authority. That date may be important, because it is the date against which the time limits on applications in section 15(3) and 15(4) apply. The registration authority will formally acknowledge receipt of your application. If a receipt is not received within ten working days you should contact the registration authority. Sometimes the registration authority may decide that the application is incomplete or otherwise unacceptable, but consider that it could be put right. If that happens, the registration authority may return the application to you and allow you to amend and resubmit it with the necessary changes.

The registration authority will now look carefully at the evidence in your application. It may decide that your application cannot be accepted (because the evidence is clearly insufficient to support the application) and will reject your application without taking any further steps.

Otherwise, the registration authority will publicise your application (for example, by sending notice of the application to the landowner and publishing the notice in the local newspaper) and consider it further in the light of any objections received. You will be supplied with copies of all objections which are to be considered and will have a reasonable opportunity of answering them. If you ask to make any significant amendments to your application at this stage, and the registration authority agrees to accept the amendments, it may be necessary for the authority to publicise the application again.

The registration authority may decide to inquire into the application. This may take the form of a hearing before an officer of the authority or of a neighbouring authority, or the case may be heard before a committee of the authority. Alternatively an independent inspector may be asked to conduct a public inquiry. Some registration authorities engage the services of a barrister for this purpose or use an inspector provided by the Planning Inspectorate. A hearing or inquiry is particularly likely if the registration authority or another local authority owns the land, so that the evidence may be tested impartially. The Court of Appeal has ruled that in determining applications where there is a dispute, the registration authority should consider convening such a hearing or inquiry⁶. Lord Hoffman also expressed the view in the Trap Grounds case that the registration authority has no duty to look for evidence or to help present the applicant's case in the best way. It is entitled to deal with the application and the evidence as presented by the parties.

The authority will reach a final decision on the application based on all the facts and evidence presented about the location of the land, the number of local people using it and the nature and frequency of the recreational use they make of it.

The registration authority will inform you whether the application has been accepted or rejected. If it is accepted, the land will be registered as a town or village green, and you will be supplied with details of the registration. If it is rejected, you will be notified of the rejection.

(b) If you are applying under section 15(8):

The registration authority will formally acknowledge receipt of your application. If a receipt is not received within ten working days you should contact the registration authority. If the registration authority is satisfied that your application is properly made, the land will be registered as a town or village green, and you will be supplied with details of the registration. An application cannot be rejected, but it may be returned if you appear not to be the owner of the land, if any necessary consents have not been obtained, or the application is otherwise incomplete.

Section 24 of the 2006 Act enables Defra to make regulations setting out further or more detailed steps to be taken by applicants and registration authorities in relation to the making and determination of applications for registration. Any regulations under this power will not be introduced until a later date when other changes to the registration system for common land and greens are brought into force.

12. Amendment of an application and part registration

In the Trap Grounds case the House of Lords considered a number of procedural questions about the registration of greens. The House concluded that registration authorities can exercise discretion in accepting amendments to an application form, or register only part of the area of land claimed if only that part meets the registration criteria. In deciding how to exercise its discretion, the registration authority will consider what would be fair to all the parties affected by the application.

13. Repeated and withdrawn applications

You may decide to resubmit your application for registration should you consider that you have significant new evidence that supports your case or that new legal criteria or case law have changed the position. In Defra's view the registration authority is required to consider a revised application, subject to any relevant time limits in section 15. But the authority would be able to summarily reject repeated successive applications that do not raise any new issues for consideration. If you decide at any stage not to proceed with your application, the registration authority has discretion either to take no further action on your application, or to go ahead and determine the application you made, based on the evidence available.

14. Further guidance

The Open Spaces Society is a source of useful information on town and village greens and produces a number of helpful publications on the subject including Getting Greens Registered — a guide to the law and procedure for town and village greens, and Our Common Land — the law and history of common land and village greens. Getting Greens Registered also includes an evidence questionnaire to use in support of a claim for registration. Commons Act 2006 — Extract from Explanatory Notes

Section 15 Registration of greens

87. Section 15 sets out the circumstances in which land may be newly registered as a town or village green. It is derived from, but varies in certain respects from, the definition of a town or village green in section 22(1), (1A) and (1B) of the 1965 Act. (There is no substantive distinction in law between a 'town' and a 'village' green: these terms merely reflect the physical setting of a green.) Subsection (1) provides that in qualifying circumstances, any person may apply to the commons registration authority to register land as a green. Subsections (2), (3) and (4) set out the three alternative qualifying circumstances.

88. The first case (subsection (2)) is where a significant number of the inhabitants of any locality, or of any neighbourhood within a locality, have indulged as of right in lawful sports and pastimes on the land for a period of at least 20 years, and continue to do so at the time of the application. 'As of right' has been defined in case law as meaning openly, without force, and without permission²⁵. The reference to "a locality" does not necessarily connote a defined area for administrative purposes, such as a parish, and the phrase "any neighbourhood within a locality" means in effect 'any neighbourhood within one or more administrative areas', in line with the judgment of the House of Lords in the Trap Grounds case²⁶.

89. The second case (subsection (3)) is where a significant number of such inhabitants indulged as of right in lawful sports and pastimes on the land for a period of at least 20 years which ceased after commencement of section 15, and the application is made within two years of this cessation.

90. The third case (subsection (4)) is where a significant number of such inhabitants indulged as of right in lawful sports and pastimes on the land for a period of at least 20 years which ceased before commencement of section 15, and the application is made within five years of this cessation. Land is not covered by this third case (because of subsection (5)) if three conditions are all met:

- planning permission was granted in respect of the land before 23 June 2006;
- before that date, construction works were commenced in accordance with the permission on that land, or on any other land covered by the permission; and
- the land either has become, or will become, permanently unusable by the public for lawful sports and pastimes as a result of works carried out in accordance with that planning permission.

91. Subsections (6) and (7) amplify how subsections (2) to (4) are to work. Subsection (6) provides that any period during which access to the land was prohibited by reason of any enactment is to be disregarded in the calculation of the 20 year period. Subsection (7) makes provision about when use is to be regarded as continuing for the purpose of subsection (2)(b).

²⁶ Oxfordshire County Council v. Oxford City Council and another [2006] UKHL 25.

92. Subsection (8) enables the owner of any land to apply voluntarily for its registration as a green, without having to show that there has first been 20 years' qualifying use of it by local inhabitants. Subsection (9) requires the consent to such an application of any 'relevant leaseholder', and of the proprietor of any 'relevant charge' over the land, thereby protecting these parties' interests in the land. Both of these terms are defined in subsection (10).
